

NEW EDUCATION PROJECT PROMISES POSITIVE CHANGE BY BRINGING BACK 'LOST' LIFE SKILLS

Change begins with education, so after almost two years of research and development, we're pleased to announce the launch of LifeGames, a free app and book designed to help teach higher social values like cooperation and sharing within the existing education system.

It comes after our research highlighted a distinct lack of essential life skills development in our current education system and growing demand from teachers for a resource to help address the shortfall... now that resource is finally here and it's free!

We're confident this latest project under FWC's commercial venture Free World One will be a success and we invite you to help make that happen by sharing the details with any teachers or child care workers you may know.

And remember, you can also share in LifeGames' success by becoming a Free World One shareholder! To learn more about LifeGames, please visit the website...
